

Copyright Law, 2015 Cumulative Supplement

This Cumulative Supplement is designed to complement the book by providing access to a variety of materials useful to students and professors alike. Together with the Ninth Edition of Copyright Law, this Cumulative Supplement provides the most comprehensive, up-to-date materials on copyright available in legal education today. For example: Part One contains the Copyright Clause of the U.S Constitution, the current version of Title 17, the Copyright Act of 1909, and miscellaneous legislative materials. Part Two provides a rich assortment of international materials, including the Berne Convention and the Berne Convention Implementation Act of 1988, NAFTA, GATT/TRIPS, the treaty texts adopted by the World Intellectual Property Organization in December 1996, and the European Union Internet Copyright Directive plus materials relating to copyright in the networked information environment. Part Three collects excerpted legislative histories of interest to teachers and students of modern copyright law. Part Four offers updated text and case law materials, including opinions newly released or revised by the courts, as well as additional and substitutional text notes updating developments since publication of the Ninth Edition. Part Five contains a Cumulative Bibliography of important secondary materials on copyright (and related bodies of law) is organized to mirror the casebook chapter-by-chapter for maximum utility. The eBook versions of this title feature links to Lexis Advance for further legal research options.
