

Zia & Me (Edition Book 1)

My earliest memory of cooking was with my Zia Vincena during the preparation of festa di familia held religiously every Sunday at Nonnas house. Three generations of my family in our house (thats about 40 people!) would get together and take part in this happy fusion of family and food. Zia Vincenas traditional village cooking began in Polistena Reggio di Calabria, Italy with her 6 sisters and 5 brothers. The large family numbers meant that good food, great cooking and lots of laughter were not just a necessity but also a way of life. Their traditions followed with them when they immigrated to Australia in the 1950s. All of the siblings went on to create their own families which is were I join the story. My cookbook Zia and Me aims to continue this story by sharing with others the simplicity and deliciousness of traditional Italian village cooking.
